

About the cross

If I had just one more song that I could sing you,
One more story I could tell before I leave
If I only had one message I could bring you,
There's no question it would be
About the cross, about the blood,
About the place I found God's mercy and love.
And although it's bittersweet remembering the cost,
There's something beautiful about the cross.

I could sing about the state of grace I live in,
and the peace and joy I have when times are tough.
And you'd see in all the blessings I've been given, in the end my life is just
About the cross, about the blood,
About the place I found God's mercy and love.
And although it's bittersweet remembering the cost,
There's something beautiful about the cross.

Two thousand ago if I had watched Him die,
I think I would lost all hope,
demanded to know why.
But now I know the cross means everything,
And it's the greatest honor to sing
About the cross, about the blood,
About the place I found God's mercy and love.
And although it's bittersweet remembering the cost,
There's something beautiful, something incredible,
There's something wonderful about the cross.

Sue C. Smith, Belinda Lee Smith

© 2002 New Spring Publishing, Bridge Building Music (adm. at Smallstonemediasongs.com)